

that horse racing, conducted as it is by the efficient members of the Jockey Club, has won its way rapidly in public favor to-day as an attractive sport it has no peer.

The report that the poolroom keeper intended to make a wholesale raid upon the betting ring by serving as many as eighty-five warrants for the arrest of bookmakers upon charges of law breaking at Aqueduct preferred by District Attorney John B. McQuinn of Queens county stirred up the layers so that in the early morning there had many scouts out trying to discover the actual existence of warrants and also to glean whatever information they could to be able to make a better of self-protection. It was not until 11 o'clock that the bookmakers of the track began to arrange their chairs.

Then the tip was circulated that there would be no trouble, that the matter would be held in abeyance, but it was nevertheless a fact that several Capt. Officer authorities were on the ground, armed with thirty-five warrants, it is said, for the arrest of prominent members of the Metropolitan Turf Association. After each race it was expected that captures would be made, but such did not prove to be the case, and the layers went home somewhat relieved. Still, to show that the penalties were out over the expected trouble, it is only necessary to say that they did away with the hand-stand and the odds on the ordinary card-board programme, which everybody possessed. That made it a difficult matter for bettors to find out the prices, and as the bookmakers did not have their names displayed, the confusion in the ring, which was packed to suffocation, may be well imagined.

Some of the Central Office men who were at the track with the warrants said that it was a difficult matter to identify the makers, and that rather than make mistakes and create unnecessary trouble they had decided to go slow. All racing men and those who admire the sport for the excitement that attends the making of a wager were loud in their condemnation of the action because of their alleged rigidity.

As is often the custom on big race days, the talented public had a most difficult time picking winners. Only two favorites landed in front and then the crowd of money dropped on the others that the bookmakers began the meeting in an auspicious manner. The crowd began to move upon West Chester in the morning. In and on race, coach and trap, in automobiles and on bicycles, the spectators were packed to suffocation. The crowd was so large that it was impossible to get even a foothold upon the steps of the grandstand, and the crowd of the big racecourse all over for the first time in its history.

The clubhouse was the usual magnet for society. Beautifully dressed women sat about the clubhouse, and the crowd of fashion straggled around the clubhouse, one topic that was uppermost in every mind, the running of the event of the day. Looking over the program, it was seen that the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

William C. White, the owner of Star Bright, was the favorite in the Metropolitan. He had a long record, having won many races, and was a favorite with the public. He was a dark bay, with a white blaze, and was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

A strong, well-bred, and powerful horse, he was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

One could not but be struck by the fact that the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

The crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

for his questionable ride on Mr. Kennebec, a two-year-old, who was a favorite with the public. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

With the tip was circulated that there would be no trouble, that the matter would be held in abeyance, but it was nevertheless a fact that several Capt. Officer authorities were on the ground, armed with thirty-five warrants, it is said, for the arrest of prominent members of the Metropolitan Turf Association.

Some of the Central Office men who were at the track with the warrants said that it was a difficult matter to identify the makers, and that rather than make mistakes and create unnecessary trouble they had decided to go slow. All racing men and those who admire the sport for the excitement that attends the making of a wager were loud in their condemnation of the action because of their alleged rigidity.

As is often the custom on big race days, the talented public had a most difficult time picking winners. Only two favorites landed in front and then the crowd of money dropped on the others that the bookmakers began the meeting in an auspicious manner. The crowd began to move upon West Chester in the morning. In and on race, coach and trap, in automobiles and on bicycles, the spectators were packed to suffocation.

William C. White, the owner of Star Bright, was the favorite in the Metropolitan. He had a long record, having won many races, and was a favorite with the public. He was a dark bay, with a white blaze, and was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

A strong, well-bred, and powerful horse, he was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

One could not but be struck by the fact that the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

The crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

the race and if he could not win he would take the hardest kind of beating. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

With the tip was circulated that there would be no trouble, that the matter would be held in abeyance, but it was nevertheless a fact that several Capt. Officer authorities were on the ground, armed with thirty-five warrants, it is said, for the arrest of prominent members of the Metropolitan Turf Association.

Some of the Central Office men who were at the track with the warrants said that it was a difficult matter to identify the makers, and that rather than make mistakes and create unnecessary trouble they had decided to go slow. All racing men and those who admire the sport for the excitement that attends the making of a wager were loud in their condemnation of the action because of their alleged rigidity.

As is often the custom on big race days, the talented public had a most difficult time picking winners. Only two favorites landed in front and then the crowd of money dropped on the others that the bookmakers began the meeting in an auspicious manner. The crowd began to move upon West Chester in the morning. In and on race, coach and trap, in automobiles and on bicycles, the spectators were packed to suffocation.

William C. White, the owner of Star Bright, was the favorite in the Metropolitan. He had a long record, having won many races, and was a favorite with the public. He was a dark bay, with a white blaze, and was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

A strong, well-bred, and powerful horse, he was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

One could not but be struck by the fact that the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

The crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

the race and if he could not win he would take the hardest kind of beating. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

With the tip was circulated that there would be no trouble, that the matter would be held in abeyance, but it was nevertheless a fact that several Capt. Officer authorities were on the ground, armed with thirty-five warrants, it is said, for the arrest of prominent members of the Metropolitan Turf Association.

Some of the Central Office men who were at the track with the warrants said that it was a difficult matter to identify the makers, and that rather than make mistakes and create unnecessary trouble they had decided to go slow. All racing men and those who admire the sport for the excitement that attends the making of a wager were loud in their condemnation of the action because of their alleged rigidity.

As is often the custom on big race days, the talented public had a most difficult time picking winners. Only two favorites landed in front and then the crowd of money dropped on the others that the bookmakers began the meeting in an auspicious manner. The crowd began to move upon West Chester in the morning. In and on race, coach and trap, in automobiles and on bicycles, the spectators were packed to suffocation.

William C. White, the owner of Star Bright, was the favorite in the Metropolitan. He had a long record, having won many races, and was a favorite with the public. He was a dark bay, with a white blaze, and was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

A strong, well-bred, and powerful horse, he was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

One could not but be struck by the fact that the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

The crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

the race and if he could not win he would take the hardest kind of beating. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

With the tip was circulated that there would be no trouble, that the matter would be held in abeyance, but it was nevertheless a fact that several Capt. Officer authorities were on the ground, armed with thirty-five warrants, it is said, for the arrest of prominent members of the Metropolitan Turf Association.

Some of the Central Office men who were at the track with the warrants said that it was a difficult matter to identify the makers, and that rather than make mistakes and create unnecessary trouble they had decided to go slow. All racing men and those who admire the sport for the excitement that attends the making of a wager were loud in their condemnation of the action because of their alleged rigidity.

As is often the custom on big race days, the talented public had a most difficult time picking winners. Only two favorites landed in front and then the crowd of money dropped on the others that the bookmakers began the meeting in an auspicious manner. The crowd began to move upon West Chester in the morning. In and on race, coach and trap, in automobiles and on bicycles, the spectators were packed to suffocation.

William C. White, the owner of Star Bright, was the favorite in the Metropolitan. He had a long record, having won many races, and was a favorite with the public. He was a dark bay, with a white blaze, and was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

A strong, well-bred, and powerful horse, he was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

One could not but be struck by the fact that the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

The crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

the race and if he could not win he would take the hardest kind of beating. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

With the tip was circulated that there would be no trouble, that the matter would be held in abeyance, but it was nevertheless a fact that several Capt. Officer authorities were on the ground, armed with thirty-five warrants, it is said, for the arrest of prominent members of the Metropolitan Turf Association.

Some of the Central Office men who were at the track with the warrants said that it was a difficult matter to identify the makers, and that rather than make mistakes and create unnecessary trouble they had decided to go slow. All racing men and those who admire the sport for the excitement that attends the making of a wager were loud in their condemnation of the action because of their alleged rigidity.

As is often the custom on big race days, the talented public had a most difficult time picking winners. Only two favorites landed in front and then the crowd of money dropped on the others that the bookmakers began the meeting in an auspicious manner. The crowd began to move upon West Chester in the morning. In and on race, coach and trap, in automobiles and on bicycles, the spectators were packed to suffocation.

William C. White, the owner of Star Bright, was the favorite in the Metropolitan. He had a long record, having won many races, and was a favorite with the public. He was a dark bay, with a white blaze, and was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

A strong, well-bred, and powerful horse, he was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

One could not but be struck by the fact that the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

The crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

the race and if he could not win he would take the hardest kind of beating. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

With the tip was circulated that there would be no trouble, that the matter would be held in abeyance, but it was nevertheless a fact that several Capt. Officer authorities were on the ground, armed with thirty-five warrants, it is said, for the arrest of prominent members of the Metropolitan Turf Association.

Some of the Central Office men who were at the track with the warrants said that it was a difficult matter to identify the makers, and that rather than make mistakes and create unnecessary trouble they had decided to go slow. All racing men and those who admire the sport for the excitement that attends the making of a wager were loud in their condemnation of the action because of their alleged rigidity.

As is often the custom on big race days, the talented public had a most difficult time picking winners. Only two favorites landed in front and then the crowd of money dropped on the others that the bookmakers began the meeting in an auspicious manner. The crowd began to move upon West Chester in the morning. In and on race, coach and trap, in automobiles and on bicycles, the spectators were packed to suffocation.

William C. White, the owner of Star Bright, was the favorite in the Metropolitan. He had a long record, having won many races, and was a favorite with the public. He was a dark bay, with a white blaze, and was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

A strong, well-bred, and powerful horse, he was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

One could not but be struck by the fact that the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

The crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight. He was a most interesting sight, and the crowd of the clubhouse was a most interesting sight.

AN INCIDENT in which the Opinion of a Popular Composer receives literal illustration by a Prominent Pianist.

After he had heard the Pianola, Moszkowski said: "Any one hidden in a room near by who will hear the Pianola for the first time will surely think it is a great virtuoso that plays."

The literal truth of this statement was demonstrated recently in an interesting and very forcible manner.

Pugno, the celebrated French pianist and the head of the piano department in the Paris Conservatory, was visiting a gentleman in whose house there was a Pianola. The instrument was in the room next to the one in which M. Pugno was being entertained. Entirely unaware of the presence of the great pianist, the son of the host began playing the Pianola. The piece he had selected was a very difficult composition of Chopin's, and Pugno, after the opening chords, ceased talking and began listening to the music with every evidence of interest and pleasure. He could not see the performer and did not know there was a Pianola in the house, but he could hear and was attracted by the music.

When the playing had ceased, he immediately turned to his host and said, "Who was that playing? He is really a remarkable performer."

To appreciate the full significance of this wonderful tribute to the Pianola, we must remember that Pugno is not only a player of international reputation—he is a teacher of the piano, and at the head of this department of instruction in the largest conservatory in the world. He is accustomed and his ear is trained to listen for every slightest defect in touch, technique, and expression. It is his business to do this. And yet he not only did not know that he was listening to the performance of an automatic instrument, but, on the contrary, he said that the player was a wonderfully fine performer.

The young man who played for Pugno was not a musician, and he only did what any one can do with a Pianola after a few simple lessons.

We are demonstrating the possibilities of this remarkable instrument to all who call at our exhibition rooms. We are always glad to show the instrument to any one who is interested in it, and to explain to you the usual hesitations about going to see a thing you do not expect to purchase, as we have room especially set apart for displaying the Pianola, and employ a large staff of men whose sole duty it is to play the instrument and explain it to visitors.

The marked popularity of the Pianola in the Summer Home leads to the belief that an examination of this instrument before they leave town is to the interest of every one.

PRICE, $250.

Can be bought by monthly installments, if desired.

The Aeolian Company
18 West Twenty-third Street, New York.
500 Fulton Street, Brooklyn.

3 ROMANS KEPT THE SHIP.

TWENTY-FOUR ABANDONED THE JUPITER AND HERE SHE IS SAFE.

Fifteen Days of Lonely Drifting Under Pole Stars With Coal Gone—Juno to Jupiter's Rescue—Hurricane Hums the Ship Anew

Now, who will stand on either hand? And keep the bridge with Italian—Lago of Anagni Rome

The bluff-headed Italian, freight steamer Jupiter, deep laden with brimstone and sulphur, after an erratic voyage of 108 days from Genoa, cut into dock at the Erie Basin yesterday. Her skipper, Capt. Zenaro, who doesn't speak English, shrugged his shoulders when asked about the mishaps of the freighter, saying that he was busy but that he would tell it all in Italian on Sunday.

The crew that brought the Jupiter in are chiefly Barbadian negroes. Her mate, an American named Rogers, practically had charge of the ship. Her original crew were Italians.

She started from Genoa with 615 tons of coal in her bunkers. Heavy head seas and gales stabled against her. But fowls on July 10, when only minutes of coal in her bunkers, she found herself 600 miles east of Bermuda. The Italian steamer, Clitta di Messina came along and helped her to make more seaworthy in tow.

Before abandoning the Jupiter the Clitta di Messina's skipper announced through a megaphone that he was willing to take anybody who wanted to give up the ship. Capt. Zenaro called all hands aft and said that he believed that the Jupiter was seaworthy, but that if anybody wanted to leave her to night he so, not, however, with the skipper's consent.

Twenty-four of the twenty-seven men in the crew decided to go aboard the Clitta di Messina, and were landed at this port in March. Two gallant Romans, Second Engineer Joseph Macagnoli and Steward Marius Malina came with her with the gallant captain. The nearest land was 600 miles away, and, being a pole-masted craft with little or no canvas, the Jupiter could do nothing but drift. What she did do was to drift, and to drift she drifted. She drifted for 108 days, and was found by the Clitta di Messina.

After she had been drifting and rolling fifteen days more the Jupiter, classically a sister and helmsman of Jupiter, here is sign

BEST & CO.

LIU PUTIAN BAZAAR

Boys' Blouses, Negligee Shirts, Etc.

With an attractiveness of style entirely their own, our present supply of Boys' Blouses and Negligee Shirts, with and without collars, appeals to the taste of the most critical.

All styles, materials and prices are represented, but in nothing is the skill of the expert more manifest than in the ability here displayed to give distinction of appearance to goods of moderate cost—one of the characteristic features of the Children's Store.

60-62 West 23d Street.

and got a line aboard the drifting Roman. The Jupiter struck to the Jupiter like a cross relation, towing her 1,800 miles, into Barado, Clitta di Messina came along and helped her to make more seaworthy in tow.

Before abandoning the Jupiter the Clitta di Messina's skipper announced through a megaphone that he was willing to take anybody who wanted to give up the ship. Capt. Zenaro called all hands aft and said that he believed that the Jupiter was seaworthy, but that if anybody wanted to leave her to night he so, not, however, with the skipper's consent.

Twenty-four of the twenty-seven men in the crew decided to go aboard the Clitta di Messina, and were landed at this port in March. Two gallant Romans, Second Engineer Joseph Macagnoli and Steward Marius Malina came with her with the gallant captain. The nearest land was 600 miles away, and, being a pole-masted craft with little or no canvas, the Jupiter could do nothing but drift. What she did do was to drift, and to drift she drifted. She drifted for 108 days, and was found by the Clitta di Messina.

After she had been drifting and rolling fifteen days more the Jupiter, classically a sister and helmsman of Jupiter, here is sign

WOULDN'T SEND HER TO HOSPITAL.

Amulance Surgeon Crane's Judgment Affected by Outside Influence.

Margaret Brown, 25 years old, a servant, living in Jamaica, was arrested at Concord and sent to the hospital on Friday afternoon. The ambulance surgeon, Crane, who was called in to examine her, refused to send her to the hospital, saying that she was not a patient, but a woman who was in need of a doctor.

She was carried to the Adams street police court yesterday morning and Miss Teale, the Irish physician, became interested in her case. She was asked to take Miss Brown to the hospital, but she refused, saying that she was not a patient, but a woman who was in need of a doctor.

She was carried to the Adams street police court yesterday morning and Miss Teale, the Irish physician, became interested in her case. She was asked to take Miss Brown to the hospital, but she refused, saying that she was not a patient, but a woman who was in need of a doctor.

She was carried to the Adams street police court yesterday morning and Miss Teale, the Irish physician, became interested in her case. She was asked to take Miss Brown to the hospital, but she refused, saying that she was not a patient, but a woman who was in need of a doctor.

She was carried to the Adams street police court yesterday morning and Miss Teale, the Irish physician, became interested in her case. She was asked to take Miss Brown to the hospital, but she refused, saying that she was not a patient, but a woman who was in need of a doctor.

She was carried to the Adams street police court yesterday morning and Miss Teale, the Irish physician, became interested in her case. She was asked to take Miss Brown to the hospital, but she refused, saying that she was not a patient, but a woman who was in need of a doctor.

She was carried to the Adams street police court yesterday morning and Miss Teale, the Irish physician, became interested in her case. She was asked to take Miss Brown to the hospital, but she refused, saying that she was not a patient, but a woman who was in need of a doctor.

Men's Suits to Order at

Stock of the Har-ison Woolen Mills—Blue Serges, new Striped Flannels, Unfinished Worsteds, Plain and Fancy Cheviots, Black Diagonals, etc. Choice Men's Suits to order at $10.

LADIES' Suits to order, Serges and Cheviots in Black, Blue, Brown, Tan and Gray, $15.

The saving is not less than $5.00—most cases it is $10.00. I guarantee perfect fit and workmanship—or your money back.

J. J. Oestreicher
NORTHWEST CORNER
28th St. and 6th Ave.
Elevated Station at Foot.

Horner's Furniture.

Whether wanted for Town or Country Homes our stock affords best selection and best values.

Bedroom Furniture in all the light and dark woods and White Enamel—Dining Room Furniture in all the new woods and finishes—Parlor, Library and Hall Furniture in latest styles—Brass Bedsteads in newest patterns—Enamel Bedsteads with brass trimmings—Select examples of French, Old English, Weathered and Green Oak Furniture, also Victorian Carved Furniture—Full line of Furniture in Antique styles, dark finish, specially designed for country houses, including Settees, Sofas, Arm Chairs and Rockers.

R. J. HORNER & CO.,
Furniture Makers and Importers,
61, 63, 65 West 23d Street
(Adjoining Eden Museum.)

Woolen Richness

For exclusive dressers; and woolens of exceptional quality and reliability for service. Modest elegance in inexpensive qualities.

The choice is open to you and your limit is the limit of the woolen world.

Burnham & Phillips
Custom Tailoring Only,
Cemile Court Annex, 110 Nassau St.

Cold Storage for Woolen Garments and Furs
AWAY FROM MOTHS OR ANY INSECT.
THINK OF THE LOSS OF YOUR FUR OR WOOLEN GARMENTS.
SILVERWARE IN OUR VAULTS GUARANTEED SAFE FROM BURGLARS.
Household and Every Kind of Goods in Fire-Proof Warehouse. See for Estimates.
LINCOLN SAFE DEPOSIT CO.
Phone 699-35th. 32-42 East 42d St.